Art Unit: 3723

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 23-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b or e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Wells (6,280,278) alone, or further in view of Wolf et al (6,457,681). Wells teaches a controller that adjusts the airstream from a fan based on the load on an electric train motor. Note for example only, Wells at column 5 lines 40-43 and 56-67; at column 6 lines 1-40 and at column 7 lines 4-15. Additionally, these elements and those not specifically disclosed in Wells would have been obvious in view of the disclosures expressly made in the reference, by themselves, or in view of Wolf et al. For example only, since wolf teaches the elements of claim 30, it would have been obvious to provide the invention of Wells with a controller capable of performing as recited in that claim, for the purpose of facilitating even more realistic operation.

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 22-29 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
